"THEY ALL KNOCK DOWN."

What a Bartender Told a Defective P. S. Sellhousen, proprietor of the bar in the La Fayette House, corner of Second and B streets, was the complainant in the and B streets, was the complainant in the Police Court this morning against two-young mass his bartenders (William Wilkerson and Harry Sears), whom he charged with robbing him. Young Sears was charged with the grand larceny of $120 from Sellhousen, and was put under $700 honds to appear for trial Thursday next.
Wilkerson was charged with embezzlings $18 from the complainant. His case was also set down for trial next Thursday.
The statement of Sellhousen is to the effect that while suffering from rheumitism last Thursday he sent for a drink of whisky to the bar, and Wilkerson sent him a drink. He drank a portion of it and had the remainder sunlyzed, and morphine was found in it. He afterward discovered that $120 was taken from his coat.

Sing was taken from his cost.

Detective Raff states that when he arrested Wilkerson he charged him with robbing his employer. Wilkerson became indignant at the charge of dishonasty.

"Where did you get the money to buy that suit of new clothes?" inquired the detective.

The Spring Meeting of the National Jockey Club.

The seven stakes for the spring meeting of the National Jockey Club closed on the 2d instant, and the entries thereto show a largh increase over the last spring meeting. The meeting will commence on the 12th of May and continue the three following days. There will be five races each day. The ful programme will not be completed for a couple of weeks, but it will, no doubt, be ne liberal as those offered at previous meet-as liberal as those offered at previous meetings.

For the national handicap, one mile and an eighth, the large number of thirty have been entered, and in the Willard Hotel stakes one mile, thirty-five. For the Analostan stakes for 3-year-olds, as a mile, twenty of the best colds and filles in training have been nominated, among them the fleet-footed Florio, Hart, Telle Doc, Radha and Tegunssel. The two 2-year-old events—the Youthful, at half a mile, and the Brentwood, at five furlongs—have the capital entry of systems each.

The 2-year-old races are always interesting in the spring, as the qualities of the younglers are unknown untithe fall of the fleg. The Army and Navy stakes, a mile and one-eighth, is for 3-year-olds, and four-flored event is the Diplomatic stake for all ages, and the names of eleven of the stontest old horses in the country appear in the list—such as Referce, Hilarity, Joe Mitchell, Bessie, Vinton, Fernitest, Lady Dean, Colonel Spragne, Chanticleer and Farewell.

In addition to these stakes, thirteen purses, at various distances, will be offered, with the naul complement of hundle races and steeplechases. The officers of the Jeckey Club lave determined to construct a better programme than has been customary for the spring meeting, in order to attract stables from Kentucky and Tennestee.

Thirty-three stables are represented in the seven stakes epitomized above, and they come from Louisiana, Georgia, South Catolina, Tennessee, Tenas, Virginia, Maryiand, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York.
The entries aggregate 142 against 129 for last spring. It will thus be seen that the prospects for a grand gathering at 1vy Cityin May are of the most dattering character, and with fine weather the Jockey Club will achieve another grand success. As in

Attorney-General Garland on the New Administracion.
The Little Rock (Ark.) Gazette publishes a private letter from the Hon. A. H. Garland to Judge John R. Eakin of the Arkansas Supreme Court, in which he gives his reasons is accepting the position of Attor-ncy-General in the new Cabinet. In the course of it he says that in accepting the place he wrote Mr. Cleveland: "I shall spare no pains to make your administration a blessing to the whole country. If I can contribute in the least to this, I am ready a brising to the whole country. If I can contribute in the least to this, I am really four years hence to quit and retire from public life and the public gaze. He also says: "A new administration has come, for which we have prayed and worked for years. Hany breakers are shead. While I have sacrificed no principle nor sound idea of my own section. I have labored to be conservative. I did it for the best for all, for I ardently and fervently desired to see our country sestored in fast once more. As Governor of Arkausas I had to pass through some of the very matters that will beact Mr. Cleveland, and I know where some of the snaga and clouds are. I want, above all things, that Mr. Cleveland's administration shall be a solid and permanent success. I believe it due to him, and I will give my powers to it for the next four years."

JOAQUIN MILLER'S MOTHER. Deserted by Her Roy Husband and Living Alone on Her Farm

dand Laying Alone on Her Farm in Oregon.

On harm among gently undulating hills four miles from Eugene, Ore, on the ent side of the Willamette River, resides Mrs. Alticon-Miller, mother of Josquin M ler, the "Poet of the Sierras," Over a year age, despite the profests of her sons, she married Joe Allison, farm head, some Blycers of age. As Mrs. Miller was upward of 05, the marriage proved anything but a happy one.

The boy deserted her, and during the recent dreadfully cold weather she lived all alone, struggling through the show two or three times a day to feed her horses and cattle. It is on this same farm that the poot grow toward man sessies, saw when he was living in the wild woods with the Dirger Indians, earlying camp life and pursuits of the chase. The nouse is plain and unyreignies. The fences are in poor repair, although the owner is reputed rich among her neighbors, having many fundred acras.

"So this is the place where the compution of Bret Batte event many of his days?" said a correspondent of the New York Sim to Mrs. Miller.

"So this is the place where the compution of Bret Harts spent many of his days?" said a correspondent of the New York Saw to Mrs. Miller.

"Yes, this is the place; but, bless you, I'm as much of a poet myself as Joaquin," she said, producing from the depins of an aged trunk a roll of manuscript which made me instinctively feel uneasy. "Here's an opic, and here's another in sixteen canbe that i wrote myself. Oh, yea, we all tabble a little in poetry."

"How long age did your son begin to writer? "Oh, he was always attl. He was a little bit of a boy when he first began scribbling recess, and he's kept it up with tolerable regularity ever since. I used to try to make him quit it, thinking no good could come of it, out it couldn't succeed. Re'auf now at NewOrleans writing up the Exposition for the Eastern press. Here are several letters lately received from blim," said she, reaching toward a convenient sheelf. "I'm glad, on the whole, that Joaquin didn't take my advice, and that he continued to do as he pleased and write poetry. The first poem no wrote that attracted attention was one on the planting of the class irea at the old Lane County Academy, where the State University new stands. It was copied in all the papers. He rau a weekly in Eugens during the war. It was a red-hot Abelition aheet, and the Missouri roughs from Long Tom Greek ever here swooped down and demolished the office. Then he practiced law swhile at Baker City, and atterward he wrote the Wong of the Sierras, which brought him into prominence."

Mrs. Miller is and and somewhat acquilar. Her hair is well slivered over with gray, and the hairs, second marrimonial infelicity, feeds her week, and roughs it uncomplainingly in her were on the business farm.
